For the first time, no students were able to present the bookfair report to the school board. Therefore, the results of the 57th annual Upsala Elementary book fair will be in print form.

People who live around Upsala bought $4739.76 worth of books from our fair. The Sixth Grade earned 25% of that total to be used to go to Duluth. That amount is $1184.94.

The class continued the tradition of donating back half of their profit to the Cora Eckstrom Elementary Media Center so all kids could have some books. That amount is $592.47.

This year students learned some things about setting goals including setting reasonable attainable goals and, then, watching the goal be reached and smashed. Students who attended with their parent helped maintain the fair display, interacted with customers and learned how to correct errors. Thirteen parents helped with the fair this year, for which I am very grateful.

We also want to continue the tradition of gratitude, thanking, in the public record, the businesses and people who donated money or helped at the fair. First of all, thanks to parents for helping at the cashier's table, hanging posters, selling and buying books. We also thank the following businesses and people for their generous donations:

Elmdale Creamery
Lange Oil
Ripplinger Plumbing
Schultz Auctioneers/Landmark Realty
Central Minnesota Credit Union

A big thanks goes to Sheri Soltis for counting all the money.

For 2018, I (Wanda Erickson with input from others) made a decision to contract with a new book fair company. Follett, an international educational products company, announced in mid-October their entrance into the bookfair market. I believe they can bring much needed competition into this space. We will host our first fair with them in May 2018, with contracts signed for both fall 2018 and spring 2019.

Follett will bring us some benefits including multiple publishers (Scholastic offered only their titles), easier display setup and tear down and better customer service. The cash percentage is 20% as compared to 25% with Scholastic, but this may be made up in volume of sales. If Follett proves to be less than excellent, we can return to Scholastic. Area librarians and school personnel are eagerly waiting for our spring fair. I will be inviting everyone to view the new company. (Yes, I will be asking for some perks from Follett for this advertising.)

In three years, the 60th bookfair will be held. I am planning a big celebration with many opportunities to purchase books and support our school. Meanwhile, see you next year at the 58th annual Upsala Elementary Book Fair!
